Keymacro is a free macro creation tool, that can be very useful for keyboard shortcuts. However, the program is not very easy to handle. First, the program shows a series of predefined hotkeys that you can use to copy the highlighted text to the clipboard. Once the selection is copied to the clipboard, it is copied to a temporary file. This temporary file can be saved in a number of formats, but the most user-friendly one is plain text. The macro can be compiled and saved into a file. When you start the program, a window will pop up. The window is mainly divided into four different areas, as you can see in the image. The bottom area of the window contains a menu bar where the majority of the functions are located. These functions include a "File" menu. This menu opens an area where you can open and save the macros. The "Help" and "About" options are located in the top right corner of the window. The help menu opens a tutorial where you can learn how to create and edit macros. The "Save As" button on the right side of the window saves the macros to the selected file. The button is greyed out if the "save" option is disabled. In the top area of the window, you can drag the cursor to highlight the text that you want to copy to the clipboard. This can be done by pressing the up and down arrows. Once the cursor is on the highlighted text, you can press the "x" key. This will copy the highlighted text to the clipboard. You can highlight several lines, or even the entire document. A screenshot of the macro in use is provided below.
