MAKE YOUR WEB TEMPLATES INTEROPERABLE! keymacro is an extension that allows you to use your existing keystrokes to navigate within your Dreamweaver templates. It is designed to allow you to access and modify your keystrokes so they can be used outside of Dreamweaver. If you change a keystroke (including renaming it) in keymacro it will be changed in Dreamweaver as well. Note: If you use a similar extension like keymacro, it will probably conflict and crash with it. This is because the Dreamweaver code uses keystrokes to determine the ID of the component. So for example, if you delete the very first "start" line in keymacro it will leave a space which will cause Dreamweaver to crash.

(Please be assured that this is not a problem with keymacro) KEYMACRO is a complete suite for working with your Dreamweaver templates. The addition to allow access to your template keystrokes adds a whole new level to the awesome power that you have in your hands with Dreamweaver. Features:

The navigation is a part of the HTML structure, and can be defined using various tools, including by the site's host, third-party applications, or the author of the site. A navigation menu allows the visitor to browse through a website's pages. A user navigates from page to page by clicking on menu links. The use of a navigational menu makes it possible to group the pages into logical groupings to help the user find the information needed. Use of a navigation menu is recommended to avoid unnecessary page scrolling, as users usually browse more pages in a web browser than the number of pages in the current folder.
